West From El Paso the Line
Ziggags; Goes Through Sand Storm Region.

Washington, D. C., June 29.—That part of the United States-Mexico boundary line extending from El Paso, Texas, to the Pacific coast is described in the following war geography bulletin of the National Geographic society:

"After leaving the Rio Grande, the natural boundary, and striking due west from El Paso for 100 miles, the international line between the United States and Mexico changes direction. Five times before reaching the Pacific coast, as if it had struck an insurmountable obstacle in the Big Hatchet mountains, it turns at right angles, and extends to the south for 20 miles. Then strikes west again for a distance of more than 100 miles to a point beyond Nogales. Forming an obtuse angle, the line now runs in a northwesterly direction for its longest leg, more than 200 miles, until it reaches the Colorado river, which forms the boundary for 20 miles from south-west to northeast. At Yuma, near the junction of the Gila river with the Colorado, the line takes its final change of direction, toward the west, terminating in the Pacific, 140 miles distant."

"This boundary is marked by 258 monuments, more than 200 of which are of cast iron weighing 500 pounds. They are six feet tall, and are placed at intervals of one mile. The expense of their erection, borne jointly by Mexico and the United States, averaged $100,000 a mile. Although the boundary was chosen arbitrarily, when the work of surveying began it was found that the line between the Colorado and the Rio Grande followed almost exactly the summit of the divide separating the waters flowing into the Gulf of Mexico from those flowing south into Mexico."

Highest Point on the Line.
"The highest point on the line is at the summit of the San Luis range, a part of the continental divide. The elevation is 6,000 feet, which is nearly 3,000 feet above El Paso. It is in this high altitude that quantities of game are to be found, making it one of the most interesting sections of the line. Here antelope, deer, bear and wild turkeys are plentiful, and the acacias from the evergreen oaks of the pine-covered valleys attract great flocks of wild pigeons. Many years ago there were a few straggling settlements in this region, but they were abandoned during the raids of the ruthless Apache chief, Geronimo."

Where Sand Storms Are Violent.
"In the valley to the west of the Colorado mountains, also called the Yuma Verde mountains, 200 miles east of the Colorado river, the traveler sometimes is so unfortunate as to encounter a sandstorm, which in several places the torrid tempests of the Sahara desert."

In a report to the United States government the International (Mexico) Boundary Commission, which made the final survey of the line and marked the border, described such a storm, saying:
"In this valley on July 2, we encountered a sandstorm of frightful violence. About 4 o'clock in the afternoon a dense, dark brown cloud was seen rising in the north, which presented a singularly threatening appearance. The sun, which until then had been shining brightly, was obscured, and in a few moments after the cloud was first noticed the storm burst in all its fury, filling the atmosphere to a height of several hundred feet with the loose soil of the valley. In ten or 15 minutes after the storm started it became as black as midnight, respiration was almost impossible, and it was only by breathing through a handkerchief held in front of the mouth that suffocation was avoided. In about half an hour the wind began to subside and the darkness to diminish, and finally, in the over two hours after the storm commenced the settling sun shone faintly through the particles of dust which still filled the air."

VILLA AND ZAPATA GENERALS

JOIN CARRANCISTAS, CLAIM

Mexico City, Mex., June 29.—Former Villa and Zapata generals with their full contingents are surrendering to the authorities of the de facto government, according to reports given out at the war department. It is stated that it is their purpose to fight against invaders of Mexico. The latest of these admissions to the de facto government is Gen. Cedillo and his brother, who have been operating in the state of San Luis Potosi. These men have turned in seven machine guns and a large supply of ammunition. They offered also to supply 500 men who are at Puerto Negro. Their offers have been accepted.

MEXICAN PAPERS SAY U. S.

TROOPS ARE LEAVING MEXICO

Mexico City, Mex., June 29.—The afternoon newspapers publish under large headlines stories to the effect that the evacuation of Mexican territory by American troops already had commenced, and saying that these forces will soon reach the frontier, where they will be compelled to remain by the army of Gen. Trevino, who will refuse to allow them to reoccupy the territory relinquished.

AKIN TELLS WHERE

THEY COME FROM

An Authority Throws Light Upon Vitalitas Stories Now Widely Printed.

One can scarcely pick up a newspaper without seeing a story about Vitalitas, the new earth product that is attracting world notice. Where all these originate is told by Col. John S. Akin, general manager of the Vitalitas Remedies Company of Houston, Texas, the sole producer of Vitalitas.

"You ask how and where we get so many statements about Vitalitas; see here," and he turns to a large file case showing many hundreds of statements and letters arranged and indexed. "These are from people throughout the south telling their experience with Vitalitas. If you run through some of these packets you will find this is the most wonderful collection of expressions of praise and gratitude you have ever heard of being given to any one thing. You will find them from professional people, farmers, mechanics, laborers, society women, servants, bankers and railroaders. Vitalitas is giving back vigor and health to the sick and diseased in all walks of life. These expressions are all voluntary, made out of gratitude and fullness of heart for this splendid gift of Nature."

As a tonic and corrective Vitalitas is without an equal. It should be taken every day. See the unique display—talk with Mr. Akin and have a free sample drink of Vitalitas at Kelly & Pollard's Drug Store, or write there for information.—Adc.

Captured By Texas Border Officers in 1846; Turned Over to the Army.

Washington, D. C., June 29.—One of the chief centers of Mexican population along the frontier to which the National Guard troops have been ordered is Nuevo Laredo. The National Geographic society from its Washington headquarters has issued the following bulletin about Nuevo Laredo:

"Nuevo Laredo, the border city of Tamaulipas, is one of the most important gateways to the southern republic, not on account of its population, for El Paso and Juarez Mexican population combined constitute a city more than twice as large as Laredo (American and Nuevo Laredo (Mexican)), but because the latter is the northern terminus of the shortest railway route to Mexico City, the distance being only about 300 miles compared with 1200 miles by way of Juarez and 1000 miles through Ciudad Portillo Diaz (Eagle Pass)."

Were Once One Town.
"With 5000 people, Nuevo Laredo is a little more than half as large as the American town at the other end of the 900 foot international bridge which spans the Rio Grande at that point. The two towns were one up to the time of the secession of Texas, the settlement on the left bank of the river being captured by Texas rangers in 1846 and occupied by United States troops under Gen. Lamar a year later. In 1852 the northern city for perhaps it would be more accurate to refer to it as the eastern city, for the Rio Grande flows in a more southerly than easterly direction in this part of its 1300 mile course from the San Juan mountains in Colorado to the Gulf of Mexico, receded its charter as a Texas municipality. The Laredo, named for a seaport in Spain, were settled by Spanish colonists during the decade preceding the American Revolutionary war."

Railway Section Starts.
"From now until late in September the region around Nuevo Laredo will present a fertile aspect, for it is the rainy season, but beginning with October, the landscape will take on a dry parched appearance, similar to the picture which it presented a month ago when the mesquite shrub with its haunt of jack-rabbits, horned lizards and coyotes."

"There are no mountains to lend beauty to the skyline in this thinly populated part of Texas-Mexico, but shortly after leaving the valley of the Rio Grande the railway line begins its long climb up to Mexico City, which has an altitude nearly a mile and a half above Nuevo Laredo."

"About 20 miles southwest of Nuevo Laredo the railway crosses through Jarita, long a rendezvous for border-riders who were supposed to patrol this region in search of Mexican smugglers, but now supposed to be feared, a much less lawful pursuit."

Queer Work of Woodpeckers.
"One of the oddities which will impress the observant traveler on his way to Mexico City is the manner in which the telegraph poles in this section are riddled with holes, as if they had been pierced with high-power, large-caliber bullets. The explanation is not that the Mexicans have been engaged in extravagant target practice but that the myriad woodpeckers of the region find the poles admirable raw material out of which to drill their bird apartments, a form of feathered industry which keeps the railway company thousands of dollars a year to replace the weakened wire supports."

Chief Product.
"The chief agricultural product on the American side of the Rio Grande in the neighborhood is a large white onion which yields as high as 20,000 pounds to the acre when the land is properly irrigated. The water from the river being in such demand for this purpose that bitter feeling, over alleged encroachment on their relative riparian rights, has been engendered frequently between the Mexicans and Texans."

J. M. GONZALES, ADVOCATE OF PEACE, HERE FROM TUCSON

J. M. Gonzales, who says his home town is Guaymas, Sonora, and who was held in jail in Tucson three days while federal officers investigated stories of his having addressed Mexicans at Tubac, a town between Nogales and Tucson, reached El Paso Thursday afternoon and explained what his mission is in the country. Gonzales said he is endeavoring to bring to the attention of the American public in behalf of the "Causa del Obrero Mexicano," an organization of 50,000 workmen in Mexico, that the two nations are wholly unnecessary, and to offer a protest against war in the name of humanity. Gonzales said he was liberated from the Tucson jail Wednesday evening. He has telegraphed Dr. David Starr Jordan, at Albuquerque, requesting an audience with the proposed peace committee of the American Union Against Militarism. Failing in that Gonzales said he may go to Los Angeles, where he formerly lived for several years.

NOTED MEXICAN EXILES ARE TO BE ALLOWED TO RETURN

Mexico City, Mex., June 29.—The Mexican government has accepted the offer of various noted exiles, communicated through the Mexican ambassador at Washington, to return to Mexico and donate their services to the government in the event of foreign invasion. These exiles include: Miguel Diaz Lombardo, ex-minister to France; Jose Maria Maytorena, ex-governor of Sonora; Francisco Escudero, former minister of foreign relations in Carranza's cabinet; Surirey Latorre, former Mexican consul at El Paso; Manuel Garza and Luis Guzman.

Gen. Carranza is in receipt of various messages from persons prominent in military and civil life, declaring their adherence to the government in the event of the outbreak of war.

MILITIA IN BIG BEND SEASONED FOR HARD SERVICE

Austin, Tex., June 29.—Capt. James M. Love, Jr., U. S. A., inspector-in-charge of state militia, has returned from a two weeks' tour of inspection of the militia in the border in the Ben country. He has not only been making an inspection of the troops but he has been giving instructions to the enlisted men and officers. Capt. Love said the men are rapidly becoming seasoned for heavy service and within a short time they will be fit for the regulars. The men are well fed and appear to be in good condition. They spend much time in drilling and in target practice.

ROOSEVELT IS DELUGED WITH EAGER VOLUNTEERS

Oyster Bay, N. Y., June 29.—Application for enlistment in a proposed volunteer army division which Col. Theodore Roosevelt is preparing to organize if there is a call for volunteers, are so numerous that the colonel's secretary, Walter J. Hays, issued today a statement in which he said, "We have been literally deluged with telegrams and letters with applications from men who wish to join a volunteer division."
